Timed Ticketing

Sell tickets to specific time slots in order to control the entry flow of patrons into your venue. Ideal for limited capacities and multi-event days.

How it works

Timed ticketing allows you to organize tickets into conditional categories, designated by specific times of entry. This helps regulate the flow of patrons through any venue – reducing long lines and overcrowding – which improves customer experience while increasing the ability to track admissions.

The flexibility of creating events with timed ticketing allows promoters to sell groups of tickets with their own time slot availability, and even conditional tickets with unique time slots that are unlocked after a primary ticket is selected. This is great for exhibits within an event.

Timed ticketing is popular among organizations that operate venues with multiple shows or exhibits per day; optimizing their box office's ability to sell tickets.
